WILSON ACCLAIMED

Press Of Every Allied Capital Applauds His Challenge To Autocracy

(Reuters Agency War Service)
London, October 16, Midnight.
The Press Bureau is officially informed that the reports published this afternoon that Germany has capitulated are without foundation.

London, October 16.—1:20 p.m.—
The Foreign Office informs Reuter's agency at 10 o'clock tonight that it has no official information on the subject of the reported capitulation of Germany.

Amsterdam, October 16.—The Nieuwe Rotterdamse Courant is unable to obtain confirmation and withdraws the bulletin reporting the capitulation of Germany and the abdication of the Kaiser.

Von Hindenburg Forced Move?
Washington, October 15.—The Associated Press states that (von Hindenburg?) forced the German Government to seek an armistice and insisted on the desperate condition of the army and the exhaustion of raw materials.

The German Chancellor strongly opposed the idea but was over-ruled by the majority of the War Council.
This explains why the latest German Note was signed by Dr. Solf.

Germany's Hopes Dashed Amsterdam, October 16.—The following passage from the German newspaper Vorwarts, which represents the views of Herr Scheidemann, a member of the German Cabinet, is noteworthy, taken in conjunction with reports of the surrender of Germany.

"The war is coming to an end in such a manner as no German desired. Let us say therefore quite candidly that during all these terrible four years the aim of all our efforts and sacrifices has been to prevent such an end."

Militarists' Power Clipped Copenhagen, October 16.—A message from Berlin states that the Federal Council has passed a bill making the assent of the Federal Council and the Reichstag necessary to make war or peace.

The Socialist Party has resolved, in view of the general political situation, not to object to Prince Max of Baden remaining as Chancellor.

Prince Friedrich Karl has intimated that he is not yet certain that he will accept the Crown of Finland.

Unrest In Central Powers (French Wireless)

Lyons, October 17.—There are unceasing and growing agitations in different parts of the Dual Monarchy, where all the oppressed peoples, claim their independence. The Hapsburg monarchy seems at the present time to be unable to make any serious resistance to these movements.

Before the Commission of the Austrian Delegation, Count Burián, the Minister of Foreign Affairs for Austria-Hungary, made a new speech in which he declared that President Wilson's reply will not retard the conclusion of peace. He stated that owing to the present position of affairs hostilities cannot last much longer. He added, "It is understood that the decisions concerning the formal conditions of an armistice will depend on military factors."

This declaration is a new proof of the exhaustion of Austria and her desire for an immediate peace, which is made manifest even in the midst of the government itself.

In Bavaria the spirit of agitation seems stronger than in Northern Ger-

North China Liberty Loan Closing Figures G.$1,800,000

Mr. Rosenfeld, Chairman Of Shanghai Committee, Assigns Credit For Successful Campaign

Exceeding the most liberal estimates of the committee, the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign brought G.$1,800,850 from Allied nationals in North China.
Of this total Shanghai buyers subscribed over a million while local banks received G.$1,221,600 from 1,778 subscribers here and in the outports. The average purchase was G.$745.41.

Campaigns in the outports netted G.$487,250 exclusive of the transactions made through Shanghai banking houses. Tientsin led with G.$217,000, Hankow registered G.$123,350 and Peking G.$115,000.

The drive has been a remarkable one in Shanghai. An unprecedented advertising campaign has been waged in the English and Chinese press under the direction of Mr. Carl Crow and Shanghai has been thoroughly canvassed by teams of Americans under the direction of Mr. A. E.

Rosenfeld, who had entire charge of the Shanghai campaign. Seven of these committees sold G.$306,100 worth of bonds to 370 buyers. Messrs.
James S. Dolan and R. D. Bunn, with 182 subscriptions totaling G.$117,200, led the district workers. Mr. H. P.
Sailor and Paymaster Shirley, U.S.N., secured 198 sales for a total of G.$102,160 and Messrs. J. J. Keegan, G. A. Roper and A. J. Mooney, with 90 sales for G.$86,800, were third in the list of district committees.

A cablegram from Secretary Lansing, received at the American Con-sulate-General through the Legation at Peking, expressed the Government's appreciation of the subscriptions from Americans overseas. The text of the telegram was:

Reports to the Department of State indicate that Americans residing abroad are making fine response to the Fourth Liberty Loan issue. Americans

Lenin Is Shot Again, Says Kieff Report

Another Attempt Is Made To Assassinate Leader Of The Soviet

Amsterdam, October 16.—A message from Kieff states that a new attempt has been made to assassinate Lenin, who was shot in the shoulder.

MR. JOHN KAVANAGH SERIOUSLY ILL IN MANILA

Is In Hospital In Critical Condition According To Word Received Here

The many friends of Mr. John Kavanagh, Acting United States Marshal, learned with a shock yesterday that he is very seriously ill at Manila.

Word of Mr. Kavanagh's illness was received at the United States Court yesterday morning when a telegram was received stating that he was in hospital at Manila suffering from dysentery and that his condition was serious. Evidently the attack came very suddenly for telegrams received from him at the Court since his arrival in Manila on the Nanking a week ago gave no indication that he was not in good health. Mrs. Kavanagh is leaving on the Ecuador to join her husband.

BELGIANS CELEBRATE EVACUATION PROMISE

Songs Sung In Antwerp Cinemas On Germany's Acceptance Of Wilson's Terms

Amsterdam, October 16.—There was immense excitement in Antwerp when it became known that Germany was willing to accept the proposals for the evacuation of the occupied territories. Songs were sung in the cinemas and the Belgian flag was dramatically raised on a housetop and flown for an hour before the order came to take it down. The owner of the flag was arrested but afterwards released.

ANOTHER LOAN COMING

Washington, October 12.—(Received at French Wireless Station).
Secretary of the Treasury Mc-Adoo has announced that it will be necessary to have a fifth and perhaps a sixth Liberty Loan issue.

In Mexico and North China have gone over the million dollar mark.
In the name of the Government I desire to express to Americans abroad the Government's appreciation of the subscriptions and to urge them to demonstrate to the enemy that in this war Americans overseas are imbued with the same patriotic fervor that Americans at home have shown.
The war is not yet over. The Government of the United States still needs the fullest response to its call for money. So let there be no American abroad who at the end of the loan campaign will not feel that he has subscribed to the uttermost limit of his resources.

Summary of the drive:

| Name of Bank                      | Subscribers | Amount      |

Matter

that the Government has postponed its decision on the question of conscription in Ireland.

Asquith Has Praise For Wilson's Reply

Note To Germany Was Exactly What Was Required,
He Says

London, October 16.—Mr. Asquith, speaking in London today, after paying a tribute to the achievements of the Allied armies, said that it was the untiring vigilance of the navy which had drained drop by drop, the reservoir of the enemy's power. President Wilson's reply was exactly what was required. The real stumbling block to an armistice or negotiation was the fact that we were dealing with an enemy whose hands are unclean and whose word is untrustworthy.
Mr. Asquith spoke in optimistic terms of the fast approaching end of the war.

ALLIES ARE OPERATING FAR NORTH OF BEYROUT

Advanced Cavalry And Armored Cars Also Occupy Town 75 Miles North Of Damascus

London, October 16.—An official despatch from Palestine reports:

At the occupation of Beyrout on the 4th we took 60 Turkish officers and 600 men prisoners.
Our armored car batteries entered Baalbek, 75 miles north of Damascus, on the 9th and ascertained that 500 Turks had surrendered to the inhabitants. Our advanced cavalry and armored cars have occupied Tripoli, forty miles north of Beyrout, and Homs, fifty-six miles northeast of Tripoli, without opposition.

KAISER STILL REIGNING UP TO THREE DAYS AGO

Anti-Dynastic Demonstrations Take Place In Berlin and Hohenzollern Statues Smashed

Amsterdam, October 16.—That the Kaiser was still reigning on the 15th appears from a decree published in Berlin and signed by the Kaiser October 15 which prescribes that the officers of military commanders under martial law must be issued in agreement with the civil authorities.

London, October 16.—The Hague correspondent of the Daily Mail states that anti-dynastic demonstrations took place in Berlin on the 14th in which several of the famous Hohenzollern statues in Unter-den-Linden were smashed. Thousands of workers in Essen went on strike on the 10th and paraded the town singing revolutionary songs, insulting the Kaiser, von Hindenburg and von Ludendorff and demanding peace.

A telegram from Limburg states that increasing numbers of Germans are entering Holland.

RELATIONS WITH TURKEY UNCHANGED FOR PRESENT

Immediate Developments Not Expected From Porte's Attempts To Get Peace

London, October 15.—Reuter's agency learns that the Turkish situation is unchanged and immediate fresh developments are not anticipated.

Paris, October 15.—The first act of Tewfik Pasha's new government in Turkey was to send a Note to the government of Austria-Hungary stating that owing to the military situation Turkey is forced to conclude a separate peace. The Turkish Minister has presented to the Spanish Government a Note from the Ottoman Government asking for the opening of negotiations regarding peace and an armistice. The Turks beg the Government of the United States to undertake the task of opening peace negotiations and accept the program laid down in President Wilson's message and declarations.

Paris, October 16.—An official despatch from Eastern headquarters reports:

vance towards Northern Serbia.

GERMANS LOOTING ALSO IN FLANDERS RETREAT

Thousands Of Fugitives Driven Out Of Towns In Belgium And Northern France

Paris, October 16.—The Havas correspondent at the Flanders front states that numerous German prisoners have been found carrying property looted at Roulers and elsewhere. They declared that they acted on the orders of their officers, whom they named. Five of the latter, who had been taken prisoners at Roulers, were thereupon arrested and handcuffed.
They demanded an interview with the Corps Commander but the latter refused to receive them, saying that he could have no relations with thieves. The arrested officers will be court-martialled.

Everywhere, before the victorious advance of the Allies, the Germans have removed the civilians from the Belgian villages, which they had then stripped bare.

London, October 15.—The following independent and spontaneous testimony reveals the Berlin Note cabled yesterday evening in its true light.

A message from Amsterdam states that the Germans are driving out tens of thousands of famishing fugitives, utterly without anything to sustain themselves, from northern France.
These fugitives are not permitted to enter Brussels. The Germans moreover are stripping sections of the Belgian railways of all zinc, copper and other metals.

Paris, October 15.—In the Senate today a number of Senators passed a resolution requesting the Government to continue with the Allies in insisting on reparation for enemy devastations and violations of international law.

The Minister for Foreign Affairs, M. Pichon, welcomed the resolution and assured the Senators that the perpetrators of such crimes would be properly punished.

ceived at French Wireless Station).—An official despatch to the Belgian Legation said the Germans before evacuating Roulers assembled many of the townspeople under guard and marched them on the Roulers-Menin road. For two days these civilians, men, women and children, were without food and shelter. The German military authorities also stopped all supplies to the civilian relieving committee and wontonly destroyed stocks of flour and foodstuffs. Civilians were driven out of their homes and the furniture removed for shipment to Germany.

NEW BLOW STRUCK

British Make Drive In Center From Le Cateau To Bohain

THE BATTLE IN BRIEF

It is a day of tremendous successes.
Almost exactly four years after the Germans took Ostend the Allies have recaptured it. Admiral Keyes landed and reported it clear of the enemy.

The Germans have been forced back on the whole front from the sea to Lille. The British have entered Courtrai and Lille and the Belgians have taken Thorout.

Foch's relentless hammering, first one front then another, is unabating.
The British have started another drive in the center, in the Le Cateau-Bohain region.

The French have made gains at separated points from La Fere to the Champagne. The Americans have resumed their advance on both sides of the Meuse, Grandpre being taken.

(Reuters Agency War Service)
The Admiralty announces: Contingents of the Air Force attached to the Navy landed in Ostend this morning and reported it clear of the enemy.

Vice-Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, the Commodore of the Dover Patrol, landed in Ostend this afternoon.
London, October 17, 2:40 p.m.—
The British have entered Lille.

ceived at French Wireless Station).—A Paris despatch says the whole German army is in general retreat from the North Sea to the region of Lille.

A London despatch says the British Admiralty has reported Ostend clear of the enemy.

West of Verdun the American troops have occupied the town of Grand Pre, on the north bank of the Oise river, north of Argonne Forest.

A French communiqué says: West of Grand Pre we progressed beyond the Aisne. We hold Oilly and Termes and took eight hundred prisoners.

A press despatch from London says the British have entered Courtrai.
The Allies have captured more than twenty Belgian villages.

Berlin (Nauen Wireless Station), October 17, 10 p.m.—(Intercepted by French Wireless Station, Koukaz). The German official communiqué of the 17th says that it is officially reported that between Le Cateau and the Oise the enemy once more attacked on a front of thirty-five kilometers. His attempt to pierce our lines which had been started with large means has been frustrated. His attacks partly failed before our lines and partly were stopped by our artillery.

The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung writes concerning the re-proaches which are made against the German army in the answer of President Wilson: The German army is not a bit more inhuman than war in general. German soldiers have certainly never acted in great numbers so inhumanly as numerous colored auxiliary troops of the Entente who have slaughtered German soldiers.

Four Miles In Day
Lyons, October 17, 10 p.m.—The Allied offensive has continued in Flanders with complete success.

Between the Yser and the Lys the Allies progressed more than six kilometers on Wednesday on a front of forty kilometers. The Belgians advanced on the right bank of the River Lys and took Thorout, which is the junction for the railways from Roulers to Ostend and from Roulers to Bruges.

South of Thorout the French took Lichtervelde and Ardoye.

The British occupied the valley of the Lys between Armentieres and Menin. General Plumer's army is gradually proceeding to encircle Lille and has advanced to the suburbs of that town. In this district and further south the German retreat is becoming very apparent. Between Carvin and Oignies the British troops are within five kilometers of the Lille-Douai railway.

On the French front there were only local operations. Our troops, northwest of Sissonne, have taken the village of Notre Dame de Liesse and the village of Acy, two kilometers southwest of Rethel.

PROGRESS DAY BY DAY

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 15.—Reuter's agency learns that the British have occupied Menin and the Allies have advanced a mile on the whole front in Flanders, capturing very important ground. They are within a mile of the Courtrai-Thorout railway.

Southwest of Lille the Germans are retreating upon the Haute-Deule Canal. We have occupied Santes, southwest of Lille.

We have reached the proximity of the enemy's chief lateral railway running from Thorout via Thielt to Ghent, in consequence of which the Germans are thrown back upon the railway between Ostend, Bruges, Ghent and Brussels for their lateral communications, which is awkward owing to its nearness to the Dutch frontier.

Our prisoners have reached a total of 10,000. On the line of the Lys northeast of Lille the position of the enemy is becoming very critical and an early withdrawal from it is anticipated.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this evening:

We have crossed the Haute-Deule Canal on both side of Pont-a-Yendin and captured Estevillers, Meurchin and Bauvin. Further north we made progress in the neighborhood of Haubourdin.

The Belgian official communiqué issued this evening reports:

The French and Belgian forces continued to advance on the whole front of attack.

In the center the French carried the whole Hooglede Plateau and captured Oits and Gitsberg. French cavalry crossed the Roulers-Thorout Road and advanced towards Lichtervelde.

On the right the Belgians, co-operating with the British forces operating further south, captured Wurckerhoeck and Lenderde and reached the railway from Courtrai to Ingelmunster.

Over 7,000 prisoners have been counted and eighty guns. The Belgians have captured a complete regimental staff.

Occupation Of Menin
London, October 15.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this evening:

The French reached the outskirts of Lichtervelde and further south, despite a lively resistance, they pushed beyond the Roulers-Lichtervelde railway.

Southward of the Canal the Belgians captured Lenderde.

The 2nd British army reached Lechan, captured Gulleghem and Heule, reached the outskirts of Courtrai and occupied Menin and Werwick, where they obtained a footing on the right bank of the Lys.

Since the 14th the Allies have taken 12,000 prisoners and captured over 100 guns.

Aviation.—Fine weather enabled our airmen to maintain very great activity all day long.

Our bombing machines caused great damage to railway stations and junctions in the rear of the enemy's lines, obtaining many direct hits and starting numerous fires on the railway sheds.

The total of the bombs dropped was thirty-three tons.

German aeroplanes were very active on the northern battlefield where heavy fighting ensued.

We destroyed thirty hostile machines and drove down six out of control, in addition to two shot down from the ground. Eleven British machines are missing.

Our night-flying machines continued to attack the enemy railway junctions with good effect and dropped over thirteen tons of bombs.

Eight Divisions Flung Back

Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters reports this evening:

Since Sunday morning eight German divisions have been flung back broken while probably all or most of the reserve divisions behind them have had a heavy grueling. This has not been a battle with limited objectives; it has rather been a drive. The French light tanks have done extraordinarily good service.

The Germans anticipated the employment of tanks, cavalry and armored cars in the event of the Allies breaking through, for all the trees along the roadside were felled and laid athwart the path and every canal crossing has been destroyed.

Despite the weather the Allies have advanced amazingly well since this morning though the fighting was obstinate in places.

Our prisoners are expected to largely exceed 11,000, which was the total this morning, and the guns captured 100.

Roulers was found undamaged and 1,200 of the inhabitants were liberated.

Between Lens and Armentieres there are signs that the enemy is withdrawing from his frontline.

We are making steady progress on the Cambrai front.

Within Mile Of Thielt

London, October 16.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this morning:

Our patrols made slight progress during the night in the Douai-Lille sector.

Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters reports today that Belgian cavalry is within a mile of Thielt.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports this evening:

In a successful local operation in the valley of the Selle we captured Havussey, taking 300 prisoners.

The enemy continues his withdrawal on the Douai-Lille front. We are following him closely and have reached the general line Oignies-Garvin-Alennes-les-St. Marais-Maugre-Captinghem. There have been sharp fights between the enemy's rearwards and our advanced detachments, in which we took prisoners.

Eight Miles In Three Days

The 2nd British Army, under General Plumer, which is co-operating with the Belgians, has advanced eight miles in the past three days. During this period, despite strong opposition, this army has captured Comines, Wervicq, Menin, Wevelghem, Heule and Citerex and secured the northern portion of Courtrai.

The left bank of the Lys is now cleared of the enemy as far as north-eastward of Harlaske.

Today we crossed the Lys between Armentieres and Menin.

The Belgian official communiqué issued this evening reports:

Our troops continue to advance on the whole front of attack. We crossed the Yser at Schoorbeke and made progress towards Schoorbeke. Koven has been captured. We reached Praet-Bosch and are enveloping the Thorout line.

We reached the railway station of Wynedaele-Hooge on the Thorout-Bruges road, where we are advancing between Thorout and Mandel.

Fresh troops have reached Tuffanme, have captured Lichtervelde and gained the outskirts of Coillcamp.

South of the Lichtervelde-Thielt railway we advanced beyond Ardoye. French troops have entered the park of Ardols Castle, whence the line runs to the outskirts of Emelghem.

The French reached the outskirts of Lichtervelde and further south, despite a lively resistance, they pushed beyond the Roulers-Lichtervelde railway.

Southward of the Canal the Belgians captured Lenderde.

The 2nd British army reached Lechan, captured Gulleghem and Heule, reached the outskirts of Courtrai and occupied Menin and Werwick, where they obtained a footing on the right bank of the Lys.

Since the 14th the Allies have taken 12,000 prisoners and captured over 100 guns.

The total of the bombs dropped was thirty-three tons.

German aeroplanes were very active on the northern battlefield where heavy fighting ensued.

We destroyed thirty hostile machines and drove down six out of control, in addition to two shot down from the ground. Eleven British machines are missing.

and have reached the Lys near Baycheve.

We took several hundreds of prisoners today.

The enemy bombarded Dunkirk and Lapanne all day long.

German Official Report

A German official communiqué reports:

The enemy has penetrated beyond the Isegheem-Courtrai railway line.

We withdrew somewhat westward and southward of Lille.

We evacuated a small salient position between Olisy and Grand Pre and along the Aisne to Mouron.

Reuter's agency learns that the Americans have captured Grand Pre.

Southwest of Lille and westward of Carvin the enemy is retreating and he is also falling back immediately west of Lille, where we have reached the outskirts of Haubourdin.

In Flanders we have occupied Hulste and Bavichove.

Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters wires this evening:

Though the Germans have hitherto conducted their enforced retirement with considerable skill, the wastage of men and material is beginning to tell seriously, as the rapidity of the development of the Belgian drive testifies. Thorout is surrounded. The whole situation is so liquid that our infantry in its advance in many places is broken up into detached forces. The material captured is colossal.

Reuter's correspondent at British headquarters reports:

We are following up rapidly our success in Flanders. Indeed it is difficult to set any limits to the Allied advance. Our cavalry is reported towards Thorout but it may be only reconnoitering bodies. Certainly our infantry has reached a point near Lichtervelde and is along the northern outskirts of Courtrai.

We are across the Lys east of Comines with posts beyond Habaserville.

The weather is fine but misty.

New British Offensive

Begun In Center Of Line

London, October 17, 1:30 p.m.—Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig attacked at 5:30 this morning on the Bohain-Le Cateau front and is making satisfactory progress.

Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig reports:

On the 15th the troops under the King of the Belgians continued their attacks between Dixmude and the Lys and advanced an average depth of over six kilometers.

The Belgians crossed the Yser northward of Dixmude and occupied Schoorbeke.

The British crossed the Lys and pushed several kilometers beyond Menin.

The Belgians captured Thorout, the French Lichtervelde and Ardoye and the British occupied Menin and are reported to have entered Courtrai. Over twenty villages have been freed of the enemy.

French Advance North Of Aisne

Paris, October 15.—The official communiqué issued this evening reports:

North of the Aisne we advanced in the region of Arsonville. We skirt the southern bank of the river Serre as far as Pouilly-sur-Serre, which is in our hands.

We made progress northeast of Marchals, taking 400 prisoners.

Further east we captured La Selve and Nizy-le-Comte.

Westward of Grandpre we held the Vouziers-Grandpre Road. In this region we took an additional 400 prisoners.

Aviation.—Deep reconnaissances by our aeroplanes observed innumerable fires kindled by the enemy in the whole territory where he is retreating.

Seven enemy machines were felled and four balloons set on fire.

Despite fog and clouds our night-flying machines dropped six tons of bombs on important stations.

We took several hundreds of prisoners today.

Prisoners' Treatment

American In Hard Fighting

London, October 15.—The American official communiqué issued this evening reports:

We continued our attacks on both sides of the Meuse, stubbornly resisted by the enemy who has been reinforced.

Eastward of the Meuse the French and American troops gained ground.

Westward of the Meuse the fighting violently increased. We made substantial gains, including Hill 299, which changed hands three times.

We broke the Kriemhild-Stellung at new points, where we engaged in hand to hand fighting with the enemy and took some prisoners.

Advance North Of Sissonne Paris, October 16.—The official communiqué issued this afternoon reports:

We made slight progress during the night north of Sissonne.

North of Asfeld we checked a violent counter-attack which was supported by a numerous artillery.

In the region of St. Germain Mont, southwest of Rethel, we captured the village of Acy.

The French official communiqué issued this evening reports:

Today we made progress northwest of Sissonne, carrying Notre-Dame-de-Liesse, and westwards of Grand Pre, where the village of Talma was captured.

First American Army In Action London, October 16.—An American communiqué issued today reports:

The First American army by continued attacks made an advance on both sides of the Meuse.

Reuter's correspondent at French headquarters wiring yesterday reports:

Our continued advance on the Laon-Aisne front has dissipated any hope the enemy may have entertained of making a stand on the prepared Serre-Sissonne-Rethel line.

The French troops have been fighting incessantly for three weeks and most of them, with brief rests, since the Spring, but they scout the idea of an armistice. They know that what prevents the enemy retreating rapidly is his inability to escape, without disastrous loss, the tentacles which Marshal Foch has thrown round him. The German retirement is technically well conducted. He has got most of his material away but it is blocking the road for his retreating troops, hence his retreat, the pace of which is thus compulsorily slackened, may prove the most costly operation the German command has yet attempted.

RIVETTING RECORD BROKEN
(American Wireless To Reuter)
San Francisco October 13.—(Received at French Wireless Station).—The world's rivetting record was broken today at the Union Iron Works of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co. A gang drove 12,579 half-inch rivets in eight hours.

Newspapers of the Pacific coast will resume publication of news of the movements of merchant ships in Pacific ports.

CAUSE OF BITTERNESS

Britain Has List Of Guilty Commandants Of German Camps

(Reuter's Agency War Service)

London, October 16.—In the House of Lords today a debate on the treatment of British prisoners of war in Germany evoked an outburst of strong feeling.

Lord Newton, speaking on behalf of the Government, said that the Government since the beginning of the war had kept a careful list relating to the conduct of all the German prison commandants. It contained a large number of men against whom very much could be said and he expressed the hope that when the day of reckoning came these would not be allowed to escape but be held personally responsible and pay the penalty for their actions.

(Reuter's Agency War Service)
London, October 15.—The Evening News states that the British Government hold conclusive proof that the U-boat which sank the packet-boat Leinster was sent out with deliberate instructions to destroy passenger boats running between England and Ireland after the German Chancellor had sent his Peace Note to President Wilson.

An Apology!

"The peoples of Latin America, from Patagonia to Mexico, are proud of the victories won by the American armies on the shell-torn fields of Europe. many. A resolution passed by the Socialist Congress at Munich demanding the constitution of a High Court before which are to be brought all the persons, including those in high places, who are responsible for the war. This has caused a profound sensation. The newspaper Vorwarts is forced to give its approval to the resolution passed by the Bavarian Socialists. It is interesting to note that the Munich writer Kurt Eisner, who took a leading part in the strikes last January and February, has just been released.

Whole Of Allied Press Hails Wilson's Reply

London, October 15.—Speaking in Manchester today, Mr. Winston Churchill said that the Allies wholeheartedly endorsed President Wilson's reply.

—London, October 16.—The press is unanimous in its approval of President Wilson's reply and appreciates his aptness for stating the British attitude.

The Daily Telegraph remarks that it is one of the hardest-hitting diplomatic communications ever published and it will prove a decisive blow to the system which is responsible for the war.

The Daily Chronicle remarks that President Wilson does not close the door to negotiations but leaves no opening for side-tracking correspondence. His prompt rejoinder to Dr. Solf allows the German nation to realise exactly where it stands.

The Morning Post says that President Wilson deserves the gratitude of the civilised world for saving the situation.

The Daily News calls it the most momentous declaration of world policy ever uttered. "It is sanctioned by the democracy of every land and the German people will know that their enemy is indeed Potsdam."

The Daily Express says that the Germans must choose whether they will live as free men or die as slaves.

The Daily Mail remarks that President Wilson justified all the high hopes the Allied nations reposed in him.

The Times says: "We, in England, set a most exacting standard for President Wilson's reply. He has satisfied it. His reply ends all idea of a bargained peace." The Times utters a warning against talk on an enemy strength is most needed, but urges the necessity for preparing for peace by the immediate establishment of a united Allied political front to meet the attempts that the enemy will certainly make to divide the Allies at the settlement.

French Senators Indorse Note Paris, October 15.—Senators unanimously approve President Wilson's Note.

Applauding it Le Temps singles out the wisdom of replying separately to Austria and expresses the opinion that an answer is now expected from the German people itself.

American Senate Approves
Washington, October 15.—Statements made by Senators belonging to both the Democratic and the Republican parties enthusiastically acclaim President Wilson's Note and reveal the satisfaction of all parties in that connection.

Senator Lodge, who criticised the former Note, expresses genuine pleasure and says that the last clause is eminently satisfactory and brings a sense of relief to the American people.

Senator Hitchcock, the Chairman of the Committee of Foreign Relations said that President Wilson had removed all doubts of the wisdom of his course.

Views in Italy

Rome, October 15.—The Italian press unanimously endorses the necessity of President Wilson's demand for most stringent guarantees and emphasises the solidarity in diplomatic matters of France, Italy, Great Britain and America.

REUTER CORRESPONDENT MUST BE OFF HIS CHOW

Reuter's Pacific Service

Vladivostok, October 18.—Today Vladivostok is lavishly placarded with headlines in large letters, with the terms of future peace and the League of Nations and a translated reprint of President Wilson's speech of September 27 which passed unheeded by the Russians, who are skeptical of everything after experiencing altruistic treaties of peace at home and the brotherhood of Socialism.

Free in their memory also are the successive declarations of the Allied Powers, worded in glowing language, of their intention to help Russia, while they behold the spectacle of certain of their would be saviors rooted in the Far East jealously regarding the actions of one another while the Czechoslovaks, Loyalist Russians and Siberians have been left unaided up till now to fight the Bolsheviks, Germans, Magyars and Letts on the Volga and Ural fronts.

The local press, commenting on the peace proposition, thinks it unlikely that France and Great Britain will agree to an armistice with victory in sight.

An order issued today by the Russian authorities commands all Russian officers and military cadets in the Maritime Province to enroll in the Siberian army.

BRIGADE GETS THREE RUNS

The Fire Brigade answered three calls between 11:24 p.m. Thursday and yesterday noon, only one of which proved to be of any consequence however.

The first of the trio of blazes was in a cigarette shop at H354-7 Hoopah Road where some matches ignited, supposedly from spontaneous combustion. Inmates had it practically under control when the firemen arrived. At 7:19 a.m. yesterday No. 4 Company had 25 minutes work in a bean curd shop at 8239 Ningpo Road where a defective fuse fired the roof.

The principal fire occurred in a school at 1274 Chekiang Road where for a time it was believed that a woman and a child had been trapped in the premises. This proved to be only report but the school was badly damaged and five adjoining shops were more or less affected. Companies 1, 4 and 7 were engaged for about an hour.

BRITISH AIR OPERATIONS

London, October 17.—Press Bureau. The Independent Air force reports:

Thick mist, clouds and rain hindered operations but we attacked Frequent aerodromes. One bomb dropped from a height of forty feet pierced the roof of a Zeppelin shed, blowing out the windows while another bomb wrecked a hangar. The mechanics who ran out after the explosion were fired on by our machine-guns, some of them being killed or wounded. The ground defenses were apparently surprised and did not attempt to fire until the attack was over. All our machines returned.

NOTICE

Messrs. CROSSE & BLACKWELL much regret that for the first time for a hundred years war conditions prevent many of their products being shipped to China. They much appreciate the letters they are receiving, and in reply would state that it is fully recognised here that under the circumstances of life in China the absence of English delicacies and foods is a very real hardship.

Messrs. CROSSE & BLACKWELL will take care that not a day shall be lost in forwarding supplies when a return to more normal conditions permits. In the meantime they trust that those who have been accustomed to rely on their products will be good enough to accept this explanation.

Germany's Frontier Forts

(New York Times)

WHEN the Allies break through a formidable stretch of the Hindenburg Line and the Kaiser appeals to the German people to preserve the Fatherland by "successful defense," it is time to give some attention to the fortifications of Germany on her Western frontier and to those of the Rhine in the path of invading armies of the Allies. Those fortresses must be reduced or contained, whatever the cost, if there is to be a victorious entry into Berlin.
On the Franco-German frontier the Allies would have to deal with the fortress districts, including areas of fortified places, of Metz and Strasburg; but they could elect to use a large part of their forces in making their approach to the Rhine fortress districts of Mainz and Cologne, through Luxembourg and Belgium.
Mainz is about 100 miles in a straight line from the Luxembourg frontier, and Cologne 75 from the Belgian. The difficulties of the task in either case should not be minimized, and in regard to the invasion of Germany through Luxembourg and Belgium there is still a long way to go, measuring the distance by the short of battle and the overcoming of defenses, existing and improvised, which may cost heavy casualties and require a vast expenditure of manpower. Moreover, winter, with its impediments to the moving of artillery and its not infrequent frustration of infantry attacks, is not far off.
Metz, until the ill-starred Basaine surrendered it, had never yielded to an enemy. Metz and Strasbourg are very formidable bulwarks of the German frontier. In the case of Metz Napoleon III. improved the defenses by a circle of forts extending for a considerable distance from the city, and the Germans, after wresting Metz from France, constructed defenses still further out, in fact as far as Thionville on the north and beyond the field of Gravelotte. Metz as a fortress dates from the days of the Romans. In the fifth century the Huns under Attila captured and plundered it. Metz had been in possession of France for two centuries when the Germans invested and took it in 1870. The peace of Frankfort confirmed their title. The capital of German Lorraine, Metz, is 99 miles northwest of Strasbourg, and it is connected with Luxembourg and the lower Rhine country by a remarkable system of strategic railways.

Strasbourg, 30 miles east of the French frontier, derives a good deal of its importance from the fact that it is the capital of the Imperial province of Alsace-Lorraine. Three hundred and seventy miles from Berlin, its modern fortifications consist of a chain of fourteen or more detached forts at a distance of from three to five miles from the center of the town; but the Germans, considering the range of modern artillery, must have constructed works much further out than this chain of forts. Strasbourg being situated on a plain at the junction of the Ill and Breusch Rivers, it has been practicable to contrive a system of releasing their waters to flow over a great part of the environs in an emergency.

Antwerp was regarded as perhaps the most formidable fortress in Europe, perhaps impregnable. It was one of Brimont's triumphs, and the outlying forts, many of which had been constructed later, were supposed to make Antwerp a Belgian Gibraltar; and yet the Germans had no difficulty—it does not appear that their heralded 42-centimeter howitzers were used at all—in pounding the tremendously expensive works to pieces and forcing a capitulation.
Antwerp shared the fate of Liege and Namur. Could Metz and Strasbourg be closely invested, and could the artillery of the Allies remove these fortresses from the road to Berlin? The Germans have never been able to dispose of Verdun.
There the vive force school, as Lord Sydenham calls the believers in high explosives and storming troops, certainly failed. Bernhardt says of Strasbourg that "it secures the most important passage over the Rhine against a French offensive into Southern Germany, and its capture or maintenance is of high moral value for the whole conduct of the war." He goes on to say:

If this fortress possesses, in addition, a certain amount of offensive power sufficient to disturb constantly the lines of communication of a French army which has crossed the river north and south of the town, the French who intend marching into Baden would be at least obliged to invest the fortress on both banks.
He concludes that Strasbourg, defending "the strong line of the Rhine and the Black Forest behind it," could be held with comparatively small armies. Having Metz as well as Strasbourg in mind, Bernhardt says:

The stronger the fortress defenses are, and the more offensive power they possess, the more will the enemy be obliged to pay attention to them, the greater will be the number of hostile troops attracted by them, and the more they will relieve for the moment our own retreating field army.

It is clear that Bernhardt believes Southwestern Germany is well protected by the strongholds of Metz and Strasbourg, and that they are very formidable as offensive bases.
The approach to Berlin through Belgium and Luxembourg should prove more feasible and more attractive. From Liege to Berlin is about 300 miles, but it must always be remembered that the strategic railways of the defenders would permit of rapid concentration and transportation of troops to repel invasion. The Rhine could be gathered only after a succession of battles on German soil; and having arrived within striking distance of the river, the Allies would find the strongly fortified cities and districts of Cologne, Coblenz, and Mainz in their path. "The fate of a nation," Bernhardt says, "can never be decided by the capture of a town, may it be ever so important." Armies in the field must be destroyed or captured. The Allies in 1919 will have a great superiority in combatants, and fortresses, used offensively or defensively, should not long impede their advance on Berlin.

Gen. Kenly Describes Our Aviation System

Director Of Military Aeronautics Tells How We Are Adopting Best Foreign Methods To Special Conditions—Fewer Accidents In U. S. Than Abroad

New York, September 1.—On no part of the war program is so much national attention centered as on aviation. There are two parts to this program: production of machines and training of men. Last week, on his appointment as Assistant Secretary of War and Director of the Air Service, John D. Ryan gave his first interview to the press, on the production side of the program. In the interview printed here Major Gen. William L. Kenly, Director of Military Aeronautics, talks for the first time of the side that concerns the training of men.

New methods, he makes known, have been incorporated; an Americanized form of the British Gosport method is being introduced, on the principle of one main flying instructor for the student from start to finish, in the place of a series of seven or eight. Instead of being trained in various sections of the country, in passing from one school to another, the new plan looks to the completion of training in one district, or grouping the schools, so far as possible, and the inclusion of the men so trained in the same unit, so that the organization in which they are to serve on the other side will be completed in this country and go overseas as a unit.

As soon as fast service machines are available the goal of the training in this country will be to make the American fliers ready for service on the firing line immediately after they arrive in France—that is, fliers finished to the last essential are to be turned out, and subsequent training needed in France is to be limited to getting them acquainted with new types of machines that come out—"transformation work."

General Kenly, the man in charge of turning out of this great body of experts—of a kind never produced in this country before and never in any country in the number to be required of the United States before the end of the war—is considered in Washington to possess an unusual combination of qualities. He belongs to the type of old-fashioned, hard-hitting army man. This was shown in his testimony before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs investigating the airplane situation; but at the same time, while having the strength of the type, he is very different from it in one respect—his mind is open to new ideas, eager for them. He is considered, therefore, the kind of man—peculiarly needed in his work—who clings fast to what is best in the old and at the same time adopts what is best in the new.

He is an artilleryman and his manner-beaten face and his manners all speak of a life in the open air. Probably it is the vigor, built up in these days, that gives him the energy he displays on a job that keeps him penned up in an office for hours on end.

"What new methods are being introduced in the training of aviators?" he was asked in his office in Washington the other day.

"I will answer that," he said, "by telling what our system is to date."

"There is, first, the selection of the men for the service. They are subjected to severe physical tests. After the physical test the men must pass special flying tests, one of the most important being calculated to show whether the candidate has a delicate sense of equilibrium. Then there are psychological tests, to see whether his mind works quickly, the whole idea being to determine whether the man has the physical and mental qualifications to make a flier.
These tests are subject to change, to improvement, because new things of value are being found in them all the time.

"As soon as the man is accepted he is sent to a ground school, one of the seven we have—at Princeton University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cornell University, University of Ohio, University of Illinois, University of California, and University of Texas. The length of the course at these schools now is some twelve weeks. Almost the whole time is spent in practical work, on motors of different type, rigging, metal work, putting on the fabric, repairing the fabric, all kinds of repairs, plane construction, radio work, artillery observation work, and handling of the machine-guns of the type that we use. There is also drill, instruction in military form and etiquette, and athletics to improve the men physically; but the main thing is the practical work in motors, airplanes, radio, machine-gunning, and artillery observations.

"After this the man, if he qualifies, is sent to Camp Dick, which has become a sort of cadet aviation school.
It is at Dallas, Texas. At Camp Dick special regard is paid to a system of severe military training. The men go there to be developed in such a way as to produce the highest esprit and morale, to be taught to give due regard to discipline. Emphasis is placed on the importance of giving the highest regard to accuracy of statement, the West Point idea—at West Point the greatest crime is to make a false official statement.

"From Camp Dick the men are sent to the primary training school.
Here the students are started flying.
The instructor usually takes the green pupil up for his initial flight in the first flying hours of the morning, because it is quiet and safest then. For the primary training there is what is known as the dual control; that is a control by which the pilot can operate the machine exactly the same as the pupil operates it—so the instructor can explain to the pupil exactly what he does, how he does it, and why. The idea is from the Gosport school in England, but the method we are now installing is an adaptation of that, modified to some extent by our own experience. It might be called the American Gosport system.

"After a certain amount of dual instruction, in which the pupil is talked to and shown, the instructor turns the man loose to fly alone.
The number of hours depends on the man and the instructor, but it is usually from five to eight. Now that the pupil begins to fly alone, he is watched by his own instructor and the Chief of Flying, and his faults corrected. Occasionally the instructor goes up with the man again, and now he begins to give him advanced dual instruction, followed by advanced solo work.

"This is kept up until the man is able to pass certain flying tests, which consist in descending and landing for a mark, making the figure eight between two points, and cross-country flights for certain distances. After passing these tests the pupil receives his wings. He is also instructed in simple 'stunting.'

"All this is called primary. From this the man now goes to advanced flying, where he is taught aerial gunnery, formation flying, pursuit and combat work, advanced 'stunting' or acrobatics, cloud flying, night flying, bombing, and finally—depending on the man's characteristics—he is specialized as a pursuit pilot, an observation pilot, or in day or night bombing, long-distance reconnaissance, or photographic work."

General Kenly was asked if, as formerly, it would be deemed necessary to send men abroad for final instructions before going to the firing line.

"In this country," he answered,
"we have all the principal facilities for training aviators more than abroad. We have every variety of climate, and great stretches of country. Our purpose is to make use of these facilities and complete the training before the men are sent overseas, so that they will be ready to be put on the firing line without delay. At the present time we are not able to do this. This is because we have not been able to get the proper number of the types of machines we must have to instruct in work over the line. But eventually this will be done.

"Now we are training them as far as we can, and as soon as we get the faster types we shall be able to complete the training so that the men we turn out can go straight to the front. Under our system, as completely installed, the man, when he completes his advanced training, will be sent to some one of the brigades which we shall have established in various parts of the country. We are starting one now at Garden City, L. I.—one wing, as we call it, has been established under the direction of Lieut. Col. Claude K. Rhinehardt.
In these brigades we shall continue advanced work—formation flying, pursuit and combat work, machine-gunnery, bombing—all that. From the brigades we expect to send squadrons overseas completely trained, and with our own men and equipment. The same methods will apply to the balloons.

"Heretofore, the demand for aviators has been such on the other side that it has been necessary to send them over partly trained. Of course, there will always be a certain amount of transformation work on the other side. I refer to new types of machines that come out."

"Have you anything to say with regard to precautions against accidents in the training?" the General was asked.

"Every precaution possible is taken for the safety of the men in flying," was the answer. "The men are first talked to as to the precaution; then they are shown—what they should do and what they should not do—for safe flying. Every means possible is taken to drill into them the fundamental rules, the violations of which result in accidents.

"Flying in itself," continued General Kenly, with the emphasis which he sometimes throws into a statement, "is a safe thing. I might say that there is only one real danger, and, with due care on the part of the aviator, it need never arise. This is 'stalling'—a slowing up of the machine, loss of motion. In order to make it plain how readily this may be avoided—and it is the one thing we emphasize most in our training—there are but two ways in which a machine may be stalled.
One is by ascending at too steep an incline, with the inevitable slowing up; the other is descending at too slight an incline, with a loss of motion for the opposite reason. A stalled machine begins to spin and, as it whirls, an aviator is likely to lose his head and, if he is close to the ground and does not regain his head, there is likely to be an accident. Almost all accidents are traceable to this one cause.

"I am glad to be able to state that the number of accidents at our training schools is less than those abroad."

General Kenly, though beyond the flying age, makes periodical flights himself, and though the important side of his work is administrative, he would not regard himself as qualified for his duties if he did not know how to fly.

He dropped down out of the skies at a camp in Texas this Spring, it is related. His coat was off, and there was nothing to mark him as the chief of military aviation. Those who greeted him first learned that he was an officer only by the salute of his pilot.

He goes about his business in the great military aviation building in Washington in this simple way, but does not fail to impress his ideas vigorously on the large body of men he directs. One of his ways of doing this is to encourage the officers performing non-flying administrative duties to learn how to fly, unless there are special reasons against taking the course.

"We have made arrangements," he said, "so that non-flying officers can take instruction in flying without interfering with their non-flying work."

"What is the chief purpose of that, General?"

"There is no more future for a man in the flying game who does not know how to fly than there is for a cavalryman who never mounts a horse. Some of the officers who are taking the training are more than 50 years old. Of course, there are physical reasons against some of the officers taking the training, and some are so occupied with executive work that they are never permitted to get away."

"What about the saying that the war will be won in the air?"

"In a sense, it may be won in the air," answered General Kenly, "but even if bombing should become so tremendous as to cause the Germans to quit, we could not say that the war had been won in the air, without injustice to the importance of our forces on land. I think, however, that it may be fairly said that the airplane will become a tremendous factor in the war."

"Will the number of men trained be regulated by the production of planes?"

"We expect to train every man possible," said the General, "but the number will be measured by production and determined by the General Staff, though, in a broad sense, we hope to be able to keep well ahead, so as to be prepared for emergencies."

"Do you see any type of machine as of growing importance in the war?"

"Every type is important. I think a tremendous amount of material and moral damage may be done by long distance big bombing machines.
They are one of the latest developments."

"What of the American fighter?"
"There is no higher type of the aviator in the world than the American, judged by the report of all the Allies. The courage and the ability of the American flier have won full recognition, and we may expect him to play a more and more prominent part in the war as it continues, because, after four years of fighting, the man-power resources of our Allies have been largely drawn upon."

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of drugging with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly deprecated, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them with opiates. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEPPA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. FLEMING, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm." EDWARD PARKER, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a mercurious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."

Spalding, Violinist-Aviator, Sees A Rebirth Of Music In War

Albert Spalding abandoned his career as a violinist to go into the war. He is now a Lieutenant in the American aviation service, and is serving in Italy, where the following interview took place.

"It would be difficult, not to say impossible, for me to answer your question as to my impression of the Italian front and of the heroic valor and endurance of our troops and those of our Allies," said Albert Spalding. "First because words are cheap things with which to express all that one feels; and second because of my uniform I am not permitted to discuss military matters in any way. But I must say as an American that we feel proud and happy to be able to work side by side with Italy in her great fight for national freedom and aspirations."

Lieut. Spalding was then asked to express his views in regard to musical Italy and the effect that the war would have on music in general. He said: "It is my belief music will take a more prominent place in people's lives, and in fact is taking a more vital place now than ever before. Guglielmo Ferrero, the historian, once said: 'Art is a pleasure without a need.' I wonder if he would repeat that statement today. Life, from a material standpoint has during these past four years come to be made of sterner stuff than it was in the inconsequential days which preceded the great war."

Material Pleasures Given Up
"People have sacrificed and suffered to the utmost extent. Material pleasures have had to be given up one by one. Distractions, luxuries and manifold interests have narrowed themselves down and become merged into one great spiritual, mental and physical effort--winning the war for democracy."

"The psychological result of this will be to prepare and fit people more for the great consolation and mental uplift that art, and especially music, can give. For the pleasures of the body will be substituted the pleasures of the mind, by necessity at first and by choice afterward. Books will be read, pictures looked at and music listened to with greater attention, interest and concentration than ever before."

"More will be got from them; more will be demanded of them. No patience will be shown the charlatans, the faddists and the tricksters who hitherto have owed their facile success to the easy credulity of a public who would go inconsequentially to their art much in the same state of mind as they would go to a fashionable restaurant."

"Remember that the intelligent listener, the layman, plays almost as important a role in the development of the music of his country as does the executive musician, the composer or the interpreter. His is the right and indeed the duty to demand the best and nothing but the best."

Few Really Can Enjoy Art

"He should not applaud an acknowledged success simply because somebody else has told him it was good. There is nothing to be ashamed of in saying 'I do not understand,' or 'I do not like such and such a work.' Enjoyment of art, looking through the eyeglasses of another person, is not enjoyment at all, or at least it is only enjoyment of the faded and pale kind that people have who are contented to know the great pictures of the world only through reproductions and cheap chromos. They get the surface without the substance; it is food without a taste."

"We will have no patience with musicians, composers and interpreters generally who have a vocabulary of many words but have nothing to say. The vocabulary, the dictionary, is as necessary in music as it is in literature, but jugglers of notes and jugglers of words can never give us what we really want--the true expression of men's ennobling experiences and ideals."

"Too many composers of talent have allowed spontaneous inspiration to be drowned by an overflow of rhetoric. The whole tendency of modern music, while enriching our vocabulary and power of expression, has been to develop this decadent form of art. It has brought us many admirable things and it has taken away some of the essential things."

"We must have more simplicity, more thought and less notes. Please remember that I am not decrying the value or the necessity of obtaining a greater range and scope of expression, whether it be in harmony, orchestration or form. But too often in modern music it is used to swamp and cloud thought rather than to clarify it."

"Those blind worshippers of modernism whose motto is: 'Away with form, tradition and the conventionalities of musical grammar,' must not forget that in seeking this freedom of art they should not run the danger of becoming slaves to chaos; else they will be emulating the political example of the Bolsheviks in Russia."

"With reference to this I must say that I already see a healthy reawakening in Italy. A public that we had thought only opera mad is now turning to the works of Perali and Bossi. Perali is certainly the first musical figure in Italy. He is too little known in our country; indeed, until the present time he has been too little known in any country, including his own, but there is now a gradual and ever increasing awakening to the lasting value of his religious oratorios and of his beautiful orchestral works."

"If Italy can produce more like him we will have to reform our impression that she is solely an operatic country. It has been so long since I have been out of music personally that you may wonder at my temerity in expressing opinions about it, but I will say that although I never make any music myself now I think about it more perhaps than ever before. In the face of the terrible disaster that is an every day living reality, music in the abstract has come to mean a necessity."

I then asked Lieut. Spalding what his views were on German music, saying: "I understand that a wave of reaction against German music has gone all over the States as well as in the Allied countries. What is your opinion in regard to this?"

He replied, smiling humorously: "I do not believe in excluding all German music, but I believe that we should only listen to music of dead Germans. There are two reasons for this: First, because it is good music; and second, because the Germans who wrote it are dead and a dead German is better than a living German."

Different From Prussian Devilry
"Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Schubert, Schumann and Brahms have nothing to do with the hellishness of the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs. Their utterances are heaven storming proclamations of nature's beauties."

"We have more right to the heritage of their beauty than has war mad Germany of today. We are more their followers in our ideals and aspirations than the Germans are, and why should we deny ourselves the privilege of listening to them simply because the unhappy land from which they came has since run amuck--temporarily we hope--from the poisons of Nietzsche and Bernhardt?"

"Do you consider that modern Germany has produced any great music?" "I do not," said Lieut. Spalding. "Modern Germany has produced many clever musicians, many efficient musicians, but in my opinion their lasting value is nil."

"A nation whose avowed purpose is the triumph of materialism cannot produce spiritual results worthy of the name and the same ruthless hand that burned the library at Louvain and pointed the guns of destruction at Rheims, Paris and Venice, has for forty years been nailing all true artistic effort and impulse toward individual freedom of thought to a military cross of iron."

"A Germany that would repudiate her Hohenzollerns and Hindenburgs might some day in the future have something to say to us in art, but as they stand today Goethe, Beethoven and Kant would renounce and disinherit them as followers."

"What place do you think America is going to take in music? Do you think that she has a future in the art of music?"

Great Awakening In America

"Most certainly," replied Lieut. Spalding. "Even before the war there was an awakening throughout America to the great need for artistic expression by the artist himself and artistic experience by the layman. And now more than ever with the sacrifices and trials and with the purification that comes by fire, American men and women will turn to music for consolation and for the expression of their thoughts and ideals. And why should we doubt that a nation that has already produced great writers, great painters and great architects should be able also to produce great musicians?"

"If you will permit a personal question, Mr. Spalding, will you tell us your own feelings at having to give up a musical life and turn to military duties. You say that you hardly ever touch the violin now. Doesn't this fill you with a great sense of loss?"

"I haven't time to think about it,"
